

The story of the Mordiford Dragon

One day a little girl called Maud was walking through the woods near Mordiford when she chanced upon a small creature that resembled a shiny cucumber with tiny fluttering wings. Maud played with the creature for a while and had so much fun that she decided to take it home as a pet. Her parents instantly recognised the creature as a dragon and her father threatened to kill it, but gave in when Maud cried and pleaded for its life to be spared. Fearing that he might still attempt to kill her new playmate she took it away to a secret hiding place in the woods and fed it on milk. The little dragon grew very fast and soon milk alone wasn't enough to sustain it, so it began killing the livestock from surrounding farms. At first the dragon ate ducks and geese, but then its appetite turned to sheep, then cows and finally local people. However, it never touched Maud who continued to visit and play with her pet.

The villagers became terrified, but did not know what to do, as none of them were brave enough to approach the dragon, let alone attempt to kill it. Then one day a man with nothing to lose volunteered to tackle the fearsome beast. He was a condemned criminal called Garson who was guaranteed a free pardon if he could put the Mordiford dragon to death. Garson discovered that every day the dragon went down to drink from the banks of the river at the point where the Lugg meets the Wye. He placed a large cider barrel nearby, hid inside and waited for the dragon to appear. When it started to drink Garson shot an arrow through a hole in the barrel, which went straight into the dragon's heart. Although Garson was successful he never received his reward as the dragon incinerated him and the barrel with its dying breath.

On the Wye Valley Way 2

Past the old mill 3

WVW (photo 2) passing several cottages and a farm.

3 On coming to Hope Springs, a very nice barn conversion complex, we turn left on the tarmac road to Bagpipers Tump, going right of the cottages and down to the right into an old orchard still on the WVW, views of Mordiford village and church come into eyesight. Continue down hill and past an old mill in the process of restoration (photo 3), to come onto a road opposite the Moon Inn, which hopefully will be open for a drink and refreshments.

4 Duly refreshed we now go to the rear of the car park, turning left on a path through the school grounds, emerging on the road opposite Mordiford church gates. Cross into the churchyard and on out through the gates beyond. (A little ahead is the old Mordiford Bridge and turning back gives a good view of the church

5 Just before reaching the tarmac road we turn left along a forest track which is followed for ¾ mile when we come to the road again, this being Fiddlers Green. Cross the road and turn right downhill keeping to the left verge past Lucksall caravan site to reach the Holme Lacy bridge, which turning left we cross (photo 5) and immediately at the bridge end turn left down the steps to reach the river bank. Turn right to follow the river through four meadows to come to a kissing gate and fishermen's hut. On passing through the gate turn right and follow the hedge to another kissing gate onto a lane.

6 Immediately turn right onto a footpath going back on your self and follow the hedge and fence on your right coming to a gate and path through a wood which is followed to a far stile. Cross stile and turn left diagonally uphill to a stile by the houses into Wyelands. Going ahead along the road bring you to the bus stop on the left and a little further the village hall. ■

Do not attempt this walk if the River Wye is in spate and across the meadows.
